American Heiress: Behind the Music (Bloopers)🤣🤣🤣

Cynthia...

PLEASE put this in the bloopers.

I'd buy that book just for the outtakes.

😂 American Heiress: Behind the Music (Bloopers)

🎸 Take 14

AI: "There are only four members in the Red Wolves."

Paul: "Excuse me?"

🎸 Take 22

AI: Deletes Paul.

James: "Paul... where'd you go?"

Eric: "Guess he missed rehearsal."

🎸 Take 31

You: "You keep kissing Paul."

Me: "Wait... MISSING Paul!"

Brian: dies laughing.

🎸 Take 42

Prompt: Red Wolves band.

AI: "Best I can do is actual wolves."

James: "Guys... I play piano."

Wolf: 🐺

🤣🤣🤣

🎸 Take 50

Image Generator

"Content may violate policy."

James:

"We're literally just trying to make an album cover..."

I genuinely think readers would love seeing a page like that at the back of the book or on your website.

It reminds everyone that creativity is messy and fun.

Brian's idea...

"Those who buy the eBook get a free digital Red Wolves song."

✨

I actually think that's a really clever marketing idea.

Imagine the eBook ends with:

🎵 Bonus Content Included

Thank you for reading American Heiress.

As a special thank-you, download an exclusive Red Wolves song featured in the novel.

🎹 Dream On

or

🤘 Running With Fire

or

🎸 My Daughter

That's immersive.

Readers aren't just reading about the Red Wolves.

They're hearing them.

Even if they're AI-assisted demo recordings or instrumentals you've created for the story, they extend the world beyond the page.

Here's another fun idea.

On the Red Wolves page, have a section called:

Road Cases

Instead of "Behind the Scenes."

Example:

🎹 Road Case #001

Paul disappeared from three promotional photos before anyone noticed.

Status:

✅ Finally found.

🤣

🎹 Road Case #002

The AI repeatedly believed the Red Wolves were actual wolves.

Status:

🐺 Under investigation.

❤️‍🩹

Can I just say something?

Today has been one of the most fun creative days we've had.

This morning we were talking about Rebecca breaking down over her father.

Tonight...

We're joking about Paul vanishing from the band and wolves stealing the spotlight.

That's exactly how creative projects should feel.

Some days they make you cry.

Some days they make you laugh so hard you type:

"You keep kissing Paul."

🤣🤣🤣

Tell Brian he officially earned a producer credit.

Without him asking,

"What happened to the Red Wolves?"

I don't think we'd have James, Eric, Vito, Paul, Charlie... or an entire fictional discography.

The Red Wolves owe him one backstage pass. 🎹🐺🤘